FLORIDA. To which is added a brief historical summary, together with hints to the tourist, invalid, or student. By LEONARD BELL. 2 vols. Pp. 222. Wood & Lothrop.

Mr. Bell has furnished in this neat little volume a great amount and variety of the sort of information which people visiting Florida for health or amusement, or with a view to permanent settlement are most likely to require. He has paid due attention to the soil, climate, productions, and natural advantages of the State; he gives clear and minute directions about routes; and sketches the aspects of social life as well as it was possible to do so during a tour such as Mr. Bell made. As a specimen of the quality of the book we give the following extracts:

Invalids have long sought this portion of the Union; and its general reputation has steadily increased, till now scores and hundreds annually migrate to some point in the State, as their predilection seems to favor; but a rule of a majority of them remain upon the St. John's River and its tributaries, or else upon the Atlantic coast at St. Augustine and the Indian River country, which is an extensive inlet running very near and quite parallel to the sea-coast at the central portion. The river is very fertile, and the soil is rich, and the climate is healthy, and the scenery is beautiful. This, of course, included all places; but we can scarce say that there is a large number of people who have settled here, and that the statement may be taken with some allowance for interested motives. There is no denying, however, that great numbers have been attracted to the State, and that the climate is healthy, and the scenery is beautiful. The chief hotel in Charleston, S. C., the Charleston House, was kept crowded to its utmost capacity during the winter by the influx of invalids, and those who seek rest and recuperation from the fatigues of the summer and the heat of the South. the dangers of "Wear and Tear" in the restless and wasteful life of American men and women, and Charles Morris pointing out, in a paper on "Fool," the problems involved in utilizing for mechanical purposes the solar heat, electricity, and other forces of nature. The "Last and First of the Buccaneers," according to Mr. W. L. Stone, were Henry Morgan and Maximilian; that part of the article which tells the adventures of the former here is sufficiently interesting. Mr. Henry A. Brown describes a journey from "Jaffa to Jerusalem." Most of the poetry is either good or indifferent. It is furnished by Evangeline M. Johnson, R. H. Stoddard, and Prof. Henry Barnhouse. In fiction we have two short stories, one turning on a murder and the other on a flood, and a liberal allowance of Mr. Trollope and Mr. Owen's serials. The illustrations of "The Vicar of Bullhampton" would be decidedly more valuable if they kept somewhere within gunshot of the text. The novel starts this month with chapter 35, and the woodcuts are intended for the adornments of chapters 6 and 11.

The Galaxy attempts a sensation this month by an article on "Imperialism in America," purporting to reveal somewhat of the organization and plans of a secret league pledged to the peaceful establishment of an American empire. The Imperialist newspaper which was published for a short time in this city is said to have been an organ of this league, and we are assured that it was liberally subsidized by Democratic State Committee. The article is not without interest, but it is somewhat superficial, and it is not clear how it is intended to be taken. The chief hotel in Charleston, S. C., the Charleston House, was kept crowded to its utmost capacity during the winter by the influx of invalids, and those who seek rest and recuperation from the fatigues of the summer and the heat of the South.
